Let's Start!

Don't be afraid to take on responsibility!

Learning Outcome

Describe necessity, duty, advice, or strong disapproval in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can request or report facts about events or actions.
- I can express necessity, duty, and advice.
- I can talk about my work responsibilities.

Ask your partner:

- When you need to talk about work or school issues, who do you call?
- What kind of advice do you ask a family member for?

Let's Explore!

Kristi needs to get it done for Thursday!

* "For Thursday" means on Thursday.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Mom: Hello?
- Kristi: Hi Mom.
- Mom: Hi Kristi! How's the job going? I was just thinking about you.
- Kristi: It's good. I need to make this a quick call. I'm just on lunch.
- Mom: Well, tell me all about it, the condensed version.
- Kristi: I've got a lot of tasks to see through this week. I've got to work systematically. My editor asked me if I could edit two chapters of a manuscript. That's a lot!
- Mom: You have to buckle down Kristi, and get it done.
- Kristi: He asked when I would be able to have it done by, and I said I could finish it for Thursday.
- Mom: You should make sure you meet these deadlines, especially in the beginning.
- Kristi: Yes, I know Mom. I must show them I can live up to their expectations. He also wondered if I would be able to do some layout. He asked what kind of experience I had doing layout.
- Mom: That's great! He's thinking about giving you more accountability. You must have made a good impression.
- Kristi: I guess so. But I'm starting to feel overwhelmed. There's so much I need to know. I have to fact-check the manuscript and look for copyright liability. It's exciting, but I've got to make sure I don't get in over my head.
- Mom: Well, it all sounds good. I'm proud of you.
- Kristi: Thanks Mom. Oh, my editor also asked if I wanted to do photo captions. That would be fun! Okay Mom. I've got to get off the phone. My lunch is over. Talk to you later. Bye!

Learning Points

Modals to Express Necessity, Duty, and Advice

You can use a variety of modals to talk about what is necessary, what someone is responsible for and to give advice.

Let's look at the modals must, have to, have got to, and should.

You use the modal must when we decide for ourselves what is necessary.

I must show them I can live up to their expectations.

You use have to and have got to before verbs that talk about necessity. Have got to is more casual. Have to implies that someone else imposed the necessity on you.

You have to buckle down Kristi, and get it done.

I've got to work systematically.*

Should is a modal you can use to give advice and to talk about duty.

You should make sure you finish the project by the end of the month. (advice)

You should take this responsibility seriously. (duty)

Examples:

- I need to make this a quick call.
- You should make sure you meet these deadlines.
- I must show them I can live up to their expectations.
- I've got to get off the phone.

Learning Points

Questions Within Sentences - Reporting

You use reported speech when you are saying (reporting) what other people said.

When you tell people what someone has said in the past, you generally make the verb tense 'more in the past'. You need to change the verb to the next past form.

For example:

Direct speech	Reported speech
"I like him."	He said he liked him.
"I' m coming to the party."	He said he was coming .
"I already ate ."	He said he had already eaten.
"I can cook."	He told me he could cook.
"Where do you live ?"	He asked me where I lived .

When you want to report questions asked, the subject normally comes before the verb.

Direct: When will you be able to have it done by?

Indirect: He asked when I would be able to have it done by.

When the question is a yes/no questions, you use if or whether to report it.

He also wondered if I would be able to do some layout.

Examples:

- My editor asked me if I could edit two chapters of a manuscript.
- He asked when I would be able to have it done by.
- He also wondered if I would be able to do some layout.
- He asked what kind of experience I had doing layout.
- My editor also asked if I wanted to do photo captions.
